

Vancouver Transit Advisory Committee

The 23-member Vancouver Transit Advisory Committee (VTAC) was formed in 2010 by the CRC project, the City of Vancouver and C-TRAN to advise the project on light rail design in Vancouver. VTAC members included property owners along the Vancouver light rail alignment, surrounding neighborhood and business associations, transit-dependent populations, commuters and design-oriented specialists.

Committee Recommendations

VTAC made recommendations on:

- Design elements for Vancouver light rail stations and streetscape options.
- Design themes for the three park and ride facilities.

Creating a Conceptual Design Report

Recommendations made by VTAC are included in a Conceptual Design Report and used by CRC, C-TRAN and the City of Vancouver staff to guide future development of light rail in Vancouver. This committee advanced the light rail alignment decision of the Vancouver City Council and the C-TRAN Board of Directors and made recommendations that captured community preferences for the design and aesthetics of stations, streetscape, park and rides, and security.
